A representative (Riley said that) "one or two smokers doesn't affect the room."

Asked if he would tell a student to get caught smoking in a room, Riley said he would not. He said that if a student is caught smoking in a room, he would not tell.

The non-smoking area was not while after a student up graduated. Kenneth Hester, president of Conestoga College, said the area.

Hester said that once the matter was brought to his attention, he instructed David Riley to look into it and take appropriate action.

Paul Horvath, of Blue Campus Club, described the situation as a "physical violation" of the college's policy.

A survey at that time, conducted by the sports council, said that about 10 per cent of the students were smokers.

John Horvath, one of the smokers, said a non-smoking area is necessary. He said that if a student is caught smoking in a room, he would not tell.

Riley added that a larger hallway where smoking is permitted would cause the problem, which would make the situation a health hazard.

Hester referred to a past policy that states students cannot smoke in the building. He said that if a student is caught smoking in a room, he would not tell.

He said the responsibility of the non-smoking area should be on the students, and should not be on the college's responsibility.

You can't run around with cigarettes in the room, Riley said.

Hester also said that a non-smoking area is a good idea. He said that if a student is caught smoking in a room, he would not tell.

Horvath, neither in the room nor in the room, said that if a student is caught smoking in a room, he would not tell.
